Overview:
An outstanding scholar, athlete, actor, singer, civil and human rights activist, Paul Robeson is one of the most accomplished African-Americans of all time. Robeson was a graduate of Rutgers college (valedictorian and all American football player), and Columbia University Law School, a professional football player, leading Broadway and London stage actor, international singer and film star, an outspoken opponent of fascism and colonialism, and a fighter for the civil and human rights of all oppressed peoples.

A close friend of W.E.B Du Bois, Paul Robeson led the anti-lynching movement with Albert Einstein –YES! The Albert Einstein!. Robeson actively campaigned in 1948 for U.S. Presidential candidate, Henry Wallace, and was one of the few entertainers who refused to cooperate with the house of un-American activities during the McCarthy era in the 1950’s. Robeson was fighting for equality and dignity long before the civil rights movement of the 1960’s. All who now enjoy the benefits of freedom and equal rights stand on the shoulders of Paul Robeson.

With this lesson, students will examine the biography of Paul Robeson and create a character analysis.

Biography adapted from: www.robesonthemovie.com

New Words:
Socialism, segregation, blacklisted, communism, racism

Grade Level:
Middle Grades

Primary Learning Objective(s):
The students will:
- identify the events of racial conflict in the life of Paul Robeson and chronicle his response to those events.

Approximate Duration of Lesson:
Two day lesson

Materials and Equipment Needed:
Journals, computes or tablets to research information, graphic organizer handouts, computer, LCD projector or whiteboard. Printed copies of articles if electronic resources are not available.

Background/Preparation:
Have students read the biography of Paul Robeson found at http://www.biography.com/people/paul-robeson-9460451 . If this source is no longer available or if you are unable to access it, check with your school library or the local public library for biographies of Paul Robeson.
Procedures/Activities:

- Let students know that they will create a KWLH, which will ask: What do you KNOW; What do you WANT to know; What you have LEARNED; and HOW you learned it. Students can create a KWLH chart by drawing four columns on a sheet of paper and label each with one of the letters, KWLH in each column. The teacher can also provide students with the a KWLH form found at: http://www.ncrel.org/sdrs/areas/issues/students/learning/lr1kwlh.htm.
- Next, students will complete the (K) Know and (W) What they want to learn sections of the KWLH about Paul Robeson.
- The students will then watch the four part video series about Paul Robeson’s life and work critiqued by Dr. Lester J. Rodney of Morehouse College on youtube.com (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=R1YKOP5Ow9E).
- Lastly, the students will complete the (L) Learn and (H) how they learned the information portion of the KWLH.
- Once students have completed their KWLH charts, inform them that they will now create an “I Am Poem” based on the life of Paul Robeson using the format found at the end of this lesson.

Assessment Strategies:
The students will use the KWLH to write their own essays about their interpretation of the life and work of Paul Robeson. They will also include three ways in which he influenced the entertainment industry and identify other entertainers who use celebrity status to empower others. The students can also create the following artifacts as evidence of their learning:
  ✓ A dramatic monologue based on the work and music of Paul Robeson;
  ✓ A poster collage that symbolizes the ideals and beliefs of the Paul Robeson; or
  ✓ A song of spoken word piece dedicated to the life and work of Paul Robeson and his contribution to the movement.

Remediation:
Students can use a character traits graphic organizer to identify information learned about Paul Robeson’s life. The students can create a web graphic (spokes and circles) to record the information. Worksheets can be found at the end of this lesson.
